POLICY & PRACTICE VISITING ASSOCIATES PROGRAM

The Pulte Institute for Global Development seeks policy and practice experts on today's most compelling global issues for its Policy and Practice Visiting Associates Program. Visiting Associates spend between 2 and 8 weeks at the University of Notre Dame, collaborating with experts and writing evidence-based, strategic publications that can positively influence global development policy and practice.

During their time on campus, Visiting Associates will complete:

- a primary policy report, presenting research, evidence, and clear policy recommendations;
- a policy brief, co-authored with a member of the Pulte Institute, presenting the key findings and policy recommendations of the larger report.

The Pulte Institute is actively recruiting applicants with expertise within the following areas:

- Poverty and Inequality
- Migration and Forced Displacement
- Development Effectiveness and Local Capacity Building
- Water Security and Energy Transition
- Mental Health
- Social Entrepreneurship

The Visiting Associates Program welcomes both individual applicants and organizational partnerships. Applications are accepted on a rolling basis. For full program details, please visit pulte.nd.edu/vap

“ Through the Pulte Institute and Notre Dame, I was able to connect with academic researchers and scholars who provided insight and ideas for my work. The affiliation also provided a unique platform to write an evidence based paper that included specific recommendations designed to have a positive effect on policy decisions. ”
